Appeal for greater effort in caring for dependants of World war veterans was made by Rev.
E. J. Gracey, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Catholic church, Wellsville, who was the speaker at the Armistice day banquets held by the East Liverpool post, No. 4, American Legion, and Sons of St. George last night.

Calis for Hospitalization.
Father Gracey, national chaplain of the "Forty and Eight," the social order of the Legion, delivered the advocate at the war veterans' banquet, which was held in Larkins' annex, Market street, and then went to the lodge celebration which was staged in the parish house of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, West Fourth street. Later he spoke at the Legion dinner.

Characterizing the movement for care of soldiers' dependants and disabled veterans as one of national importance, the army chaplain asserted that the state of Ohio should have better hospitalization facilities than it does have. He cited inadequate conditions he had observed in a recent trip through several state institutions.

Father Gracey, who made the trip to the Paris convention with the American Legion, also told of the great welcome the Americans received

Sc Wall Street Shivered.
For Childless Women.

By ARTHUR BRIEGAN

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Briegan and do not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

Wall Street shivered on Wednesday, hearing that George F. Baker was ill, and let stock prices drop. That was typical of Wall Street nervousness.

Mr. Baker, one of the world's four richest men, was only slightly ill, in any case, like John D. Rockefeller. Mr.
Baker is fortunate in having an able son ready to carry on his affairs, and carrying a big part of the load now.

There would be no throwing overboard of stocks or any dangerous happening on the death of any of the big financial four—Rockefeller, Mellon, Baker, Ford.

Which is the richest, nobody knows;
not one of the big four knows. Perhaps it is Rockefeller, who has so much underground.

This news, if confirmed, will lighten
the hearts of many women. Dr. Maclean of Manchester, a scientist in standing, says that by an operation in gland transplanting it has been made possible for hitherto childless women to bear children. Only those who know the intense sorrow of a woman, married and childless, can realize what this means.

Professor Gulick, of Columbia, is afraid that our wave of crime, reaching from government officials to bootleggers, will "engulf public life." But it won't.

Unsuccessful criminals go to prison,
some to the electric chair. Criminals that become rich also become diseased or drunk or both and die out.
Even political crime, selling govern-eon Guests.

PLAN PEP MEET Invitations go Out Today for Thurs- day Affair.

Kiwanis club will entertain the members of the East Liverpool and Chester High school football squads
at a noon luncheon in Larkins' annex,
Market street, Thursday.

Invitations to Coaches Hurst and Wilde, members of the two teams and School Superintendents C. S. McVay and A. L. Rabenstein of the schools were issued today.

The luncheon will assume the form of a pep meeting, with Prof. H. F.
Laughlin, supervisor of music in the schools, and pep-maker of Kiwanis, leading the singing.

Many novel features are planned by the entertainment committee.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs, club president, will be in charge of the program.

FORMER DAYTON P. O. CLERK HELD

DAYTON, O., Nov. 12.—Albert Opdyke, former head of the parcel post department of the Dayton postoffice, today was under a federal indictment charging him with fraudulently using postage stamps that had been previously used in forwarding mail.

Thirty-six indictments, two of them secret, were returned by the federal grand jury late yesterday. Opdyke has been under arrest for some time.

Among the other true bills, Harry L. Crow and Charles R. Strain, of the national military home, were named for alleged mailing of obscene matter;
R. J. Norton, of Springfield, was charged with using the mails to defraud; and Robert Delker, of Urbana, with embezzling $100 from the funds of the First National bank.

ROBBERS LOOT GAS STATION

Theft of merchandise valued at $100 by robbers who forced open the front door of the Gaston Place gasoline filling station, Youngstown road,
north of East Liverpool, Thursday night, was being investigated today by Sheriff George Wright and Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsavater. Frank
Robinson is owner of the station.

Loot included candy, groceries, oil spark plugs and other accessories.

NEW YORK OPENS HOLLAND TUNNEL

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Clifford M. Holland today will carry out to conclusion the life's dream of her husband which was ended for him by death three years ago.

The widow will participate in the ceremonies incident today to the formal opening of the huge "Holland tunnel," the world's largest vehicular tunnel connecting Manhattan and New Jersey under the Hudson river.

Holland, noted engineer, died three years ago of strain and overwork.

Shifting Sand and Gravel
Undermines Streets
and Homes in Stricken
New England.

East Liverpool launched its eleventh annual Red Cross roll call today as President Coolidge instructed two members of his cabinet to proceed to Vermont to assist in rehabilitation work in the New England flood areas.
Appeals for an enrollment of 2,000
here were made by Miss Florence Updegraff, director of the roll call,
who, with her corps of women workers, are in charge of headquarters and booths in post offices, banks, theatres and business houses.
The campaign will continue until Saturday, November 19.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—President
Coolidge today directed two members of his cabinet to proceed to Vermont next week to participate with Vermont state officials in conferences looking toward the rehabilitation of the New England flooded areas.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Attorney General Sargent, the latter a native of Vermont, will meet with Vermont officials next Wednesday with state officials to discuss rehabilitation measures.

Order Coming Out of Chaos.
BOSTON, Nov. 12.—Flood areas of Vermont and Massachusetts had a new problem today as shifting sand and gravel undermined streets and homes.

A score of houses were rendered unsafe for occupancy in North Wy-pole, N. H., and several streets in Windsor, Mass., were reported from field. Many foundations of many houses in both communities were disturbed. In Massachusetts, Hampden Memorial bridge was closed today to heavy traffic and trucks were barred from the streets until a complete survey was made.

Fresh water has been piped to isolated Waterbury, Vt., and an epidemic averted.

Slowly but surely everywhere in the flood regions of the six states order is coming out of chaos.

The flood stimulated the Red Cross membership drive in Boston, $13,405 being taken in gifts and memberships on the first day.

The Red Cross headquarters announced that the relief work for the 10,000 made homeless in New England was at an end and that attention was being given to rehabilitation.

BURT KAUFMAN, REAL ESTATE BROKER, DIES IN HOME HERE

Second Death in Family
Within One Week.

61 YEARS OLD

Funeral Services to be Held Monday Afternoon.

Burt Kaufman, 61, real estate broker and fire insurance dealer, died in his home, 1403 Fairmont street, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after a month's illness of a complication of diseases. This is the second death in the family within a week. Charles Kaufman, a brother, of 666 St. Clair avenue, succumbed on Friday, November 4.

Mr. Kaufman was born in West
Moreland county, Pa., and came to East Liverpool in 1879. He learned the trade of a potter and for more than 21 years was employed as a jiggerman at the "Old End" works of the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles plant. He also worked at the Taylor, Smith & Taylor pottery and the C. C. Thompson plant and later at New Castle and was in the service for short periods. With the exception of one year spent in Carrollton, he had resided in East
Liverpool for 48 years.

He left the pottery in 1921 and since that time had been engaged in the real estate and fire insurance business with offices in the Altman building, formerly known as the Birk block.

He was a member of the First Methodist Protestant church and is a former member of the union of carpenters. He was also affiliated with the Woodmen of the World and held a honorary membership in the National Brotherhood of Operative Pottery. He was a charter member of Local Union
No. 12.

Mr. Kaufman was united in marriage to Miss Josephine Schenkel, daughter of the late Jacob Schenkel, corner Diamond barber, on December 28, 1886, having celebrated his 40th wedding anniversary last year.

Besides his widow he is survived by three sons, William B. Nowell, Howard J. Kaufman, and Rowland T. Kaufman, at home. Two brothers, Samuel Kaufman, Holton, Kansas, and F. L. Kaufman, Columbus, and three grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held in the family home at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, in charge of Rev. John F.
Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends may view the body Sunday afternoon or evening.

Bandits Get $8,450 In Waynesburg Job

Posses Comb Canton for Five Men Who Escape
After Hold-Up of Bank
Cashier.

Waynesburg, O., Nov. 12.—Sheriff's deputies and Canton police at noon today were conducting a search in Canton and vicinity for five bandits who,
shortly before noon held up M. M.
Muckley, cashier of the Waynesburg bank, and took $8,450 which Muckley was transporting to Waynesburg to meet two payrolls.

Muckley told authorities that the five men drew up beside him in a powerful automobile and forced him to stop by firing several shots. He was then bound and gagged and tied in the tonneau of his own auto, which was driven into a side road. Freeing himself 20 minutes later, he hurried to a nearby farmhouse and called sheriff
Ed Gibson at Canton by telephone.

Although the robbers were reported en route to Canton, no trace of them has been uncovered at 1 o'clock. It was generally believed they had taken a route toward the Ohio river in the direction of Steubenville or Marietta.
Waynesburg is 20 miles south of Canton.

Follows.

B. R. Dawson, near Ohioville, Pa., suffered a dislocated shoulder and one of the two horses he was riding was injured east of Smith's Ferry, last night, when a crash between the wagon and an automobile was climaxed by a runaway of the animals in the path of a westbound Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company car.

According to the street car crew, the team became frightened while Dawson and others were arguing about the crash between the team and automobile, the driver of which was not identified.

The wagon was destroyed and front end of the traction car was damaged.
Interurban traffic was delayed as a result of the accident.

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 12.—
Three people were burned to death and a fourth was reported dying as the result of a fire which destroyed the home of Jesse Darlington here early today. The victims: Jesse Darlington, 25; his mother Mrs.
Nancy Darlington, 55; and his 11 months' old son, Joseph William.

Locked Door Bars Way.

Mrs. Mazie Darlington, 23 arose about 4 o'clock this morning to prepare breakfast for her husband, Jesse, and attempted to start a fire in a cookstove with kerosene. The result was an explosion which awakened other members of the family and set the three room frame house in flames.

Seeing his wife on the floor, badly burned, Jesse Darlington lifted her to a window and pushed her outside. In the meantime the mother, Mrs. Nancy Darlington, was attempting to escape with the infant and the son went to assist her.

The front door was locked and all three were trapped and overcome at that point.

Citizens of the town formed a bucket brigade, but the house was completely destroyed. The bodies, charred beyond recognition, were extricated from the ruins. Mrs. Mazie Darlington was taken to the home of a neighbor and no hope is held for her recovery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Gifford
Pinchot, crusading ex-governor of Pennsylvania, was produced today by the government as a mysterious surprise witness in the grand jury investigation of jury-tampering in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial.

Pinchot, one of the severest critics of the Teapot Dome lease which Harry F. Sinclair secured from Ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, was before the grand jury for little more than a quarter of an hour. But both before and after his session with the grand jurors he was closeted with U.

and Assistant District Attorney Neil

Sally's Shoulders

"HER MAN"
"HONEY LOU"
"THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

CHAPTER LVII.

Sally left Millie painting her nails with some new kind of mother of pearl polish and went down the stairs to Aunt Emily.

"Your father was sick again, wasn't he?" asked the good woman in her severe way, glancing up from the pie crust she was rolling out. "I heard the doctor come and go. But I was so busy I couldn't take the time to get upstairs to see him. What's wrong?"

Sally told her. She wound up by telling her what the doctor's orders had been as to peace and quiet for Mr. Jerome.

"That means we can't have the orchestra playing in the dining room for two or three weeks, doesn't it?" Aunt Em mused. "And we can't afford to pay them while they aren't working for us. So—out they go!" She never wasted a dollar if she could help it.

"The thing that bothers me most is where I'm going to find the money for this trip, when my father gets better and is able to travel," said Sally, watching Aunt Em narrowly while she spoke, to see how she took it.

Aunt Em took it grimly and silently. Her lips straightened and tightened, and she never looked up, but kept on rolling out pie dough as if her life depended on it.

"I thought that perhaps you'd lend me $500," Sally went on timidly, "and I'd take $15 for my salary every week instead of $30, until I'd paid it all back to you."

Aunt Em went on rolling out pie dough with vim and energy and zip, saying nothing at all.

"Because Dad's just got to get away for a change and a rest," added Sally, desperately. "He's got to get away if I have to go and steal the money somewhere—"

"You never thought of asking Beau to sell his car, did you?" snapped Aunt Em, finding her tongue all at once, "for asking Millie to kick in with a little money for a change?" Aunt Em read detective stories in odd moments, and from them she had picked up slang such as "kick in" and "hold the bag."

"Beau couldn't get more than a hundred or so for that little bus of his," answered Sally. "And Millie would just about drop dead if anyone asked her for any more—"

"Yes, but they all think it's all right to ask you for everything you've got, don't they?" Aunt Em broke in furiously. "You've carried the whole kit and caboodle of them for years, and they think that's just as it should be! You can come to me for this money, and take a year to pay it off, and that's all right!" She flung her rolling pin down on the table with such force that it bounded off and down on the floor.

Sally began to wish that she never asked for a nickel.

"Well, Aunt, maybe Dad can borrow the money from the bank, or do something like that, himself," she began, when Aunt Emily cut her off short again.

"Oh, I'll lend you the money!" she barked. "As far as that goes, you've earned it—dancing here every night for almost five months. But it makes me wild to see the way your mother rushes to you every time she's in trouble!" She gave an angry snort.

"Mother doesn't know anything about this," Sally came quietly to her mother's defense. "The doctor just told me, two minutes ago, that the best tonic for my father would be some kind of a trip—a boat trip or a month in the mountains, and I came straight to you."

"You'll need more than $500, then," Aunt Emily figured, after a minute. "But go ahead, and tell your mother to make her plans with your father as soon as he's better. . . . And you'd better tell Mabel to come here and take her baby away if your father's supposed to be quiet. That child makes as much noise as a whole army of people." Aunt Em had no use for babies—not even if they were her own relatives.

"Millie wants to go with Mother and Father, too," said Sally. She thought they might just as well get the whole thing settled then and there.

To her surprise Aunt Emily's face brightened. "Well, that's the best news I've heard today!" she rapped out, slamming the oven door upon her pies. "It'll be worth the cost of sending her along, just to get her out of the house! Won't it?"

Sally agreed with her in her own mind. But she was too loyal to Millie to say so.

With a swift, grateful smile at her aunt she turned and hurried up stairs to break the good news of the trip once more, too, now that Mr.

to Mrs. Jerome.

On the first day of the blue-and-gold October Mr. and Mrs. Jerome and Millie started away for the trip to Bermuda.

Their train left early in the morning, and Aunt Emily and Sally saw them off and were back home in time for an 8 o'clock breakfast.

The house was unbelievably quiet when they unlocked the front door and stepped into the wide, white-paneled hall. It was like Aunt Emily's house in the old days before it had been turned into The House by the Side of the Road.

Aunt Emily, herself, drew a long, contented sigh as she and Sally sat down to breakfast before the snapping little wood fire in the hall.

"Isn't this like the old days?" she asked, pushing the tea wagon nearer to the friendly blaze, and lifting the cover from the silver platter of toast. "No Millie talking nonsense to some man over the phone. No groans from Clara Margaretta, complaining of the toe-ache. No baby yelling for a bottle—"

The baby had been a great worry to Aunt Emily. And she had taken no pains to hide her relief the night before, when Mabel had taken it away with her to the newly-furnished flat where she and Beau had set up housekeeping for the second time.

"Peace!" said Aunt Emily. "Peace and quiet!" She looked around the big hall with great contentment in her angular face. She loved her old maid's castle.

But Sally was lonely.

She missed her mother. She missed her father, and she actually found herself missing Millie's light-hearted, inconsequential chatter. Most of all, she missed the baby.

There was a great deal of the mother in Sally, as there is in every girl who is born to be a sweetheart, a wife, and a home maker. It was natural for her to look after a baby as it was to water and tend a dying begonia plant or a sick geranium, or to bring in a stray kitten and give it milk in a saucer. She was a love, was Sally. She was all love—warm-hearted, tenderhearted, and kindhearted.

There was loveliness within her as well as loveliness that could be seen in her blue eyes, her wide, happy smile, and her bodily grace. And that is a rare combination in this world of ours—as any many who knows women can tell you if he wants to.

At 6 o'clock that night Sally slipped into the gypsy costume of gay calico and flaming silk all sewn with little brass bells.

For she was to dance again that night for the first time in three weeks. The jazz orchestra was to break the good news of the trip once more, too, now that Mr.

Jerome was out of the house.

"Mother wanted me to promise not to dance any more," Sally told Aunt Em when she slipped down to the kitchen at half past six, with a white apron tied over her Roman dress.

Aunt Em sniffed with indignation. "Yes, but she's perfectly willing to take the money that you've earned dancing, isn't she?" she asked sharply. "They all think you've disgraced the family by dancing in a cabaret—as they call my perfectly respectable dining room, but the money we make suits them to a T!" She banged a tray down on the table, and began to pile water glasses upon it.

"There's a friend of yours in the dining room," she said shortly. "That Mr. Davidson. Better go in and speak to him. He asked for you."

Davidson was sitting all alone at a table in front of the windows, idly smoking a cigaret.

He did not get up as she crossed the room to him and sat down on the other side of his table. He was very good looking, but he certainly had no manners.

"Hello," he said, and promptly tried to cover her hands with his own, as Sally folded them on the cloth before her.

She drew them away.

"How have you been?" she asked, with her brilliant, friendly smile. "I haven't seen you for ages and ages—two or three months?"

He grinned. "No, and you never would have seen me if I hadn't heard that Millie had left town," he said with a quick nod of his blond head. "She called me up yesterday to say she was going away this morning—"

so I came to see you tonight. What do you think of that, my lady?"

Sally did not know what to think, so she said nothing at all. Her face, serious and frank with its direct, honest gaze and quiet lips, was not the kind of face that harmonized with her gay gypsy costume and the bright bandana handkerchief bound about her head. There was nothing of the gypsy about Sally—until she started to dance. Then she always brightened up until she looked like Joy and Carnival personified. She loved to dance.

"Kid," said Davidson, softly, hoarsely, "I'm crazy about you, still. I don't know why—because you've always walked all over me as if I were a floor mat. But I am."

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1927.

How Much, Mr. Candidate?

Under the Ohio corrupt practices act, all persons whose names appeared on the ballot in Tuesday's municipal, township and school district election, must file a sworn statement of their campaign receipts and expenditures with the election board within ten days after November 8.

The Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors today warned that Friday, November 18, is the deadline for the submission of the expense reports, which must contain an itemized account of the outlay as well as the source of all contributions.

In the event of non-compliance with the requirement, certificates of election shall be withheld from successful candidates, while their names, as well as the names of unsuccessful office seekers who neglect to file their sworn statements, will be forwarded to the attorney general for prosecution.

A hint to the wise should be sufficient.

Money For Art

John D. Rockefeller has given $500,000 to rebuild the Shakespeare Memorial theatre at Stratford, England, which burned down last year. That is one-fifth of the total fund sought, and the biggest single gift.

It is a worthy purpose, and one which indicates again the broadening out of Rockefeller philanthropy. The elder Rockefeller confined his benefactions chiefly to medical, educational and religious purposes. The younger Rockefeller, while maintaining the family interest in those important branches of activity, is reaching out into other fields, including art. His present contribution to dramatic art is merely the latest and most notable example.

It is a natural development, in which other big philanthropists share. First our great private philanthropists in this country went in for the essentials in improving human life. Now they are coming to the finer things usually regarded as luxuries, yet perhaps no less essential to real civilization.

Car Porter's Tips

The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, through its legal counsel, attacks the tipping evil again.

The gist of the argument is that the established tipping custom harms the public by "injuring the service rendered by the Pullman company," and injures the porters by making their compensation unequal.

"Porters are public servants," they say. "The company permits and encourages them to receive tips. Tipping produces discriminations in favor of the tip giver. The interstate commerce act commands equality of treatment among passengers. Tipping is therefore unlawful."

That may or may not be a sound plea legally, but it is sound as a human protest against what the porters insist is a sort of "slavery."

When people engaged in any branch of personal public service, as car porters are, must depend largely on their tips for a decent livelihood, it not only results in discrimination, in pay and service, but makes them unduly servile. Efficiency is one thing; excessive servility to extract liberal tips from likely-looking patrons is quite another thing.

The public, which is mainly responsible for the tipping evil, will doubtless keep right on tipping porters, to some extent, no matter what the rules may be. But it would help matters if the porters could depend more on their pay and less on their tips.

Whittling

It may be merely another of those apocryphal tales that always spring up around the White House, but it sounds plausible and carries an appeal to any old-fashioned American.

President Coolidge, it is said, when asked recently what he was going to do on the expiration of his term, replied that he expected to "go back to Vermont and whittle for a year or two."

In how many countries will that be understood? Not in many, we fear, without elaborate explanations. Even the present generation of Americans has to think back a little to recall the time when whittling leisurely with a jackknife was associated unflinchingly with thoughtful and fruitful meditation, and when cartoons of Uncle Sam represented him often as a farmer sitting on a rail fence, whittling a soft stick.

There is much virtue in whittling, whether the whittler really makes anything or merely watches the shavings curl up from his knife and fall to the ground. One of the main things wrong today with this country is that people have forgotten how to whittle. Perhaps they still whittle in Vermont. Mr. Coolidge's reputed words seem to imply that, for he is an orthodox Vermonter.

There is no more fruitful vocation for a rural sage, or for a retired statesman, or a statesman merely resting and cogitating between jobs. It may be better than fishing. The whittler is likely to be a little more constructive than the fisherman.

"Modern progress is mostly sound" says an optimistic observer. Anybody with sensitive ears will agree to that.

If Roumania wants any advice from us, all we saw is, "Leave it to Marie."

A military man, like a politician, should never see anything wrong except on the other side.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains— By Fontaine Fox

LAST WEEK THE SKIPPER GOT HOLD OF AN ARTICLE BELONGING TO THE WATER CO. AND REALIZED A LONG TIME DREAM OF BEING ABLE TO CONTROL THE CAR FROM THE ROOF DURING THE HUNTING SEASON.

(C) Fontaine Fox, 1927. The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Along the employment agencies on Sixth avenue humanity seems boiled down to its uttermost dregs. Backward and forward in front of the agencies pace the jobless with the apparent futility of the circus lion in his cage.

Just now the spectre of winter faces chronic flutters. They are beginning to turn up their frayed coat collars and scan the chalked bulletin boards for work in sunny climes. These are men who usually wait around a month and follow the swallows.

Largely they are representative of roaming types of unskilled labor the world over and must be content with the meagre rewards of dish-washing, floor scrubbing and the like. You see bulletins for basement porters, bus boys, hotel housemen, gardeners and potato peelers.

Not many are looking for permanent work. Rather do they seek a job for a few days or few weeks and then drift off from Bangor to Bombay and from Seattle to Singapore. They stand in groups like cattle in a storm, seemingly blind white of emotion.

Some have poker faces and lynx eyes, others have loose lips and roving chins and are the economic question marks. Also, those odd human misfits just a little too proud to beg and too lazy to work. And, of course, there is a sprinkling of those who have tried earnestly and keep on trying.

New York is not a pleasant place for the jobless in cold weather. During the summer they have freedom of the public parks where, wrapping themselves in newspapers, they can sleep comfortably through the night. But winter fills the municipal lodging houses and many must sleep in doorways or walk the streets.

Curiously enough there is very little cynical brooding among the drifters. They take languid interest in radical speeches from soap boxes along the curb. You somehow get the idea they have a realization their misfortune is largely their own fault.

New York has a way of changing the names of its many wonders. The Hudson river, the namesake of its discoverer, Henry Hudson, is better known among New Yorkers as the North river. The New York Navy yard is almost always referred to as the Brooklyn Navy yard. The Whiteside Battery has been shortened to The Battery.

Abe Martin Says:

"I hain't complainin' about him not bein' a good provider, Judge, but he acts like a perfect brute if I make the least suggestion about his cookin'," testified Mrs. Leslie Hanger, in divorce court today. Doctors say insane people are far happier than sane people, so I guess lots of our optimists are really optimists after all.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Proposal For Crime Reduction.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12.—A wide variety of means by which it may be possible to check the crime wave in this country are under consideration by the National Conference on the Reduction of Crime. They range from a proposal that vigilante committees be formed in urban centers as well as in the smaller cities, towns, and villages, to a suggestion that radical changes be made in the jury trial system, and they come from representative business and professional men, including the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Vigilante committees are urged as an especially effective way to check bank robberies and to see that the criminals are apprehended. In frontier days the vigilantes were informal and extra-legal organizations of citizens who took law enforcement into their own hands in communities where courts were non-existent or grossly inefficient and by drastic and summary punishment of law violators sought to establish law and order.

The modern vigilantes similarly are voluntary associations of citizens, but they are formed to cooperate with the officers of the law and are given legal status in emergencies. These citizens are armed and trained until they are proficient in the use of their weapons and they hold themselves in readiness to assist sheriffs or the police in hunting down bank robbers, payroll bandits, and perpetrators of other crimes of violence.

The sawed-off shotgun is said to be the ideal weapon for the vigilantes. The veriest tyro learns readily how to handle it, it is effective at a considerable distance and at short range it is deadly, and it strikes terror to the heart of the criminal. Men who will fight it out to the death with officers armed with automatics and rifles lose their nerve when they hear the roar of the sawed-off shotgun. They know they are almost certain to get some of the missiles in its load of slugs or buckshot, and they know that if they receive the full load at short range it is likely to tear an arm or a leg off or blow all their insides out.

Don't Like Rough Treatment. Criminals do not like such rough treatment, it is said. Yeggs—safe blowers—in particular are especially amenable to shotgun persuasion. A yegg sent in advance to get the layout of a crib his gang plans to crack has only to hear shotguns popping in the vicinity, and to learn that it is practice day for the local vigilantes, immediately to lose all interest in pulling off a job around there. He knows only too well what a load of buckshot will do when it strikes a man amidship, and he has no stomach for that sort of thing.

So effective is the threat of the vigilante and his sawed-off shotgun, major crimes of violence in Iowa dropped from 56 in a year to 4 in a like period within four years after the formation of committees numbering some 4000 stalwart citizen law enforcers, and rates for insurance against bank robberies were reduced to the minimum whereas in adjoining States they were sharply increased.

That the present day trend in crime prevention is generally in line with a policy of ruthlessness in dealing with criminals is further shown by the growing public demand that the criminal when apprehended and convicted be punished to the limit of the law, that criminal laws be made more drastic, the court procedure in criminal cases be radically reformed to end that there be less chance for the guilty to escape and that trials may be expedited, and that the jury system be modified so that a higher class of jurors may be secured and that one or two corrupted or stubborn jurors can not cause a disagreement when the preponderance of opinion in the jury room is that the defendant is guilty.

There is less talk of reforming criminals than there was a few years ago.

and more of punishing them or putting them where they can not engage in their criminal proclivities. The idea seems to be gaining that since the criminal is at war with society, society's war of defense will be more effective if it is made a war of reprisal, waged just as mercilessly as the criminal wages his war. There are, of course, many people who do not subscribe to this theory and who still cling to the idea that the criminal is an unfortunate and should be so treated, and that society should never be vengeful, but their number seems to be decreasing steadily.

Chief Justice Taft's Views. "We all, of course, are in favor of measures which will induce criminals to become law-abiding citizens," Chief Justice Taft told the Conference on Crime Reduction, "but we must never forget that the chief and first object of prosecution of crime is its deterrent effect upon future would-be criminals in the protection of society. We must not allow our interest in criminals to go to the point of making effective prosecution of crime and its punishment subordinate to schemes for reform of criminals, however admirable they may be."

Mr. Taft said that Americans are an easy going people and allow abuses of various kinds to develop until they become so objectionable that they arouse themselves and then work radical reforms. That such a time is now at hand is his hope, he said.

In discussing habitual criminal laws—New York and Michigan statutes recently most widely debated—the Chief Justice said "it seems to me that they indicate that the forgotten man—the victim of the murderer, and the robber, and the criminal—as well as society at large, is being remembered."

Under these laws a person convicted of a felony four separate times is sentenced to life imprisonment, whatever the nature of his fourth offense.

Another measure that is proposed by students of the problem is the establishment of a national governmental information bureau that will collect and disseminate all essential information concerning crimes and criminals.

als and maintain a rogue's gallery where the photographs and fingerprints of known criminals will be kept. Law enforcement officials claim that at present one of their greatest handicaps is their difficulty in getting dependable information about criminals and getting it promptly.

It is interesting to know one bit of information that has been presented to the Conference, even though it is not precisely the kind of information that would be valuable in court. It is that married men are far more law-abiding than bachelors.

In 200,000 cases, the number of single men arrested for vagrancy was 11 times as great as the number of married men; for robbery, 6 times greater; for intoxication, 3 times greater; for gambling, disorderly conduct, and petit larceny, 3 times greater; and for immorality, 2½ times greater.

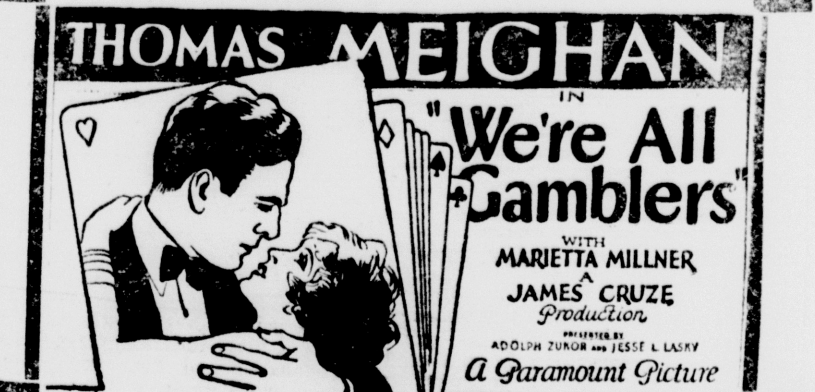

This suggests an amendment to the habitual criminal law which would provide that upon a second arrest and conviction of a felony, bachelors be sentenced to get married in addition to being given a prison sentence, being paroled from the latter pending good behavior. Such a law might be rather hard on the fair sex, but it might be the salvation of thousands of bachelor criminals.

Musical Comedy Tops Ceramic Theatre Bill

Company of 25 People Appears in Conjunction With Eddie Cantor's Screen Success, "Special Delivery."

A musical comedy and a feature picture, starring Eddie Cantor, of stage fame, will top the week's bill opening at the Ceramic theatre on Monday.

"The World of Pleasure," a high class stage presentation with a cast of 25 people, including pretty girls and comedians as well as clever dancers, will be offered in conjunction with "Special Delivery," featuring the comedian who tickled Broadway for years. In his support are William Powell, Jobyna Ralston and Ronald Keith.

In addition the management will offer a news reel and orchestra music. In "Special Delivery," Cantor follows out his contention that the life of the man on the street, is after all the most interesting. He depicts the rookie postman whose blundering earnestness gets him into all sorts of difficulties. All through the action, the expressive Cantor eyes are much in evidence. He possesses the rare ability of suggesting pathos with his humor.

Spontaneity is the keynote of "Special Delivery." At no time does the action seem strained. The story moves fast. Cantor finds himself involved and likewise discovers that he has several keen rivals. Flannigan the cop (Jack Dougherty) and Harrigan, the fireman (Donald Keith) prevent his love affair from running too smoothly. Enters the villain, William Powell, and his snarling nefarious activities keep everybody on the jump.

Jobyna Ralston, for three years Harold Lloyd's leading woman, plays Madge, the waitress in the Dutch Lunch, and the object of Eddie's dreams. Cantor is credited with the story which is said to be as entertaining as the film version of "Kid Boots," his first Paramount starring vehicle.

Coverdish Party at Gillis Home.

PLAN PRAYER WEEK SERVICES AT Y. M. C. A.

E. C. Worman of India to Speak Wednesday.

BOYS' MEETING
Robert M. McBurney
Sponsored Movement
61 Years Ago.

With all of its meetings and conferences devoted to spiritual thoughts and activities, East Liverpool will join with more than 40 national and international organizations of the Young Men's Christian Association in the observance of November 12 to 19 as a week of prayer.

While various programs will be arranged for Y. M. C. A.'s throughout the country, the Ceramic City association will be interested chiefly in the visit of E. C. Worman, of India, who will talk to groups of young men and boys.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5:15 he will give a stereoscopic talk before members of the boys' department and in the evening he will discuss the activities of the Y. M. C. A. in foreign countries before the combined H-Y and Junior H-Y clubs.

On Thursday afternoon he will speak before the Y-Indus and the Roosevelt clubs.

The "Week of Prayer" began as a day of prayer 61 years ago when Robert M. McBurney offered the resolution setting aside the first day in November for the "increase of spiritual prosperity of the Young Men's Christian Association throughout the world."

The plan of extending the observance to a full week was taken up when the New York association began in the following year the World's conference of the association recommending universal action of a similar nature.

We Would See Jesus

Sermonette by Dr. Henry H. Crane

"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." John 14:9. Whenever we become morally in earnest, spiritually hungry, or intellectually baffled we can scarcely do better than join that ancient company whose simple slogan was: "We would see Jesus." Everywhere men are coming increasingly to realize this fact. Philosophies, institutions, programs won't do. We have tried them times without number. Always they promise to perform, but invariably they prove powerless. Personality alone is adequate—and a PERFECT Person, at that, in Whom we shall be able to SEE WHAT GOD IS AND WHAT MAN OUGHT TO BE. Nowhere, save in this Man of Galilee, is such a Person to be found. Hence the wisdom of that ancient quest: "We would see Jesus!" Nothing is more needful than to know God aright. Who is behind the source of life? What is the nature of the Cause and Conserver of this universe? What is He like? How shall we think of Him? Is He kindly disposed or hostile toward His human children? Is the cosmic order which He has created basically good, bad, or indifferent? Is it friendly or antagonistic to the struggle for right? These are, and have ever been the deepest questions of the human heart. Where shall we find the answers?

"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father" is the wondrous word Jesus and none other, has to utter. To see Jesus, then, is to see God as it were. And lo, as we look we behold the face of a Father—Who numbers the hairs of our head, and noteth the fall of every sparrow—and Who is infinitely concerned for our every need. To see Christ is to come to know the Spirit which is at the heart of the universe—a Spirit of such self-sacrificing love that it comes at last to a Cross and there conquers hatred, evil, error, and even death itself. No wonder "we would see Jesus!"

PASTOR URGES 2,000 MEMBERS FOR RED CROSS

Rev. A. H. O'Brien
Lauds Work of Greatest Mother.

ROLL CALL HERE
National Goal in 1927 Appeal is 5,000,000.

"Greatest of all national organizations that we have is the American Red Cross," said the Rev. A. H. O'Brien, president of the Ministerial association and pastor of the First Baptist church, today in an appeal for support of the eleventh annual roll call.

"The American Red Cross is 21 years old this year which means that the mother organization has come in to full womanhood. Accordingly 1927 is expected to be its highest year. National membership goal has been set at five million."

"Quota for members in East Liverpool is 1,500, but we hope to add an additional 500."

"Red Cross knows no race, color, or creed. It appeals to the best in all mankind. We should join Red Cross one hundred per cent."

Who is my mother and who are my brethren? He asked as He looked over the heads of the people who had come to hear Him talk.

And He stretched forth His hand toward His disciples and said, "Behold my mother and my brethren. For whosoever shall do the will of my Father, he is my brother, sister and mother."

Once again He had saved His kingdom of the invisible by relying on its laws; again He had emphasized the relationship of souls. Once more we hear Him preach the doctrine that earthly ties, though most tender and dear, had lost their right to the highest place.

As Christ was revealing to the multitude His sonship and their sonship unto God, He was informed that His mother and brethren were anxious to speak to Him.

MIDLAND HIGH GRIDDERS DEFEAT PITTSBURGH LADS

BLUE AND GOLD BOYS WIN, 33-0, IN FINAL GAME

South Side Eleven Downed on Twelfth Street Field.

OUTCLASS FOE

Steel City Scores on End Runs and Forward Passes.

Presenting an offensive which netted five touchdowns on end runs and forward passes, Midland High trimmed Pittsburgh South High gridders, 33-0, in the Steel City's team's final game of the season yesterday afternoon at Twelfth street field.

Blue and Gold boys had little trouble in making heavy gains through the Smoky City's line and time and again broke away for long runs around ends. Two of Midland's touchdowns resulted from the aerial attack.

George Suffoletto, who wore the Blue and Gold uniform for the last time yesterday, and Louis Glumac were by all odds the outstanding ground gainers and scorers. Each accounted for two markers. They tore their way through the Pittsburgh forward wall and gained heavy yardage on each end.

Soon after the opening whistle Glumac scored six points on a three-yard plunge through center, after G. Suffoletto had carried the ball for a first down followed by a blue-yard dash through center. Glumac missed extra point after touchdown. Quarter ended 6-0, Midland.

Blue and Gold scored in the second stanza when G. Suffoletto received a heavy from Glumac and crossed the goal line. Extra point was gained via pass from Glumac to L. Suffoletto.

Midland's third tally came near the end of the half and was scored by Glumac, climaxing a pair of five-yard gains by Suffoletto and Glumac. Glumac kicked extra point. Score at end of half was 20-0, Midland.

Rallying in the third quarter when Midland showed signs of an easy victory, Coach Russell's Pittsburghers made their sole threat at the Blue and Gold goal. The spurt was short lived, however, Midland coming out of its slump with plenty of fight for the finish of the contest.

Midland's second score-bringing pass was made by Glumac to Singleton, who carried the ball over for the Midlanders' fourth count. Glumac kicked for point.

G. Suffoletto again carried the ball deep into Pittsburgh territory when he intercepted a pass heaved by Sellers, South High tackle, and raced 20 yards to South's 30-yard line.

Five-yard gain by Glumac, aerial advance of eight yards, Glumac to L. Suffoletto, and short gains by Glumac and G. Suffoletto resulted in a score by the latter on a short center plunge. Midland failed to make the try for point.

Weir, at center, showed ability to get into the play and offer dependable interference. Garlosky, guard, Graham, tackle and L. Suffoletto, half were new faces in the Blue and Gold lineup. Garlosky and Graham were developed by Coach Lombard to strengthen his line. Midland's forward wall probably worked more efficiently yesterday than at any time in the season.

Cancilla was a good ground gainer for Pittsburgh. Rodgers proved his worth late in the third quarter by halting Midland's advance into his territory when he grabbed a Midland pass on his own 10-yard line, returning 15 yards.

ACCUSED IN RAID FORFEIT BONDS

Mrs. Marie Barker, 116 Midland avenue, charged with maintaining a disorderly house, following her arrest by Sergeant H. B. Keller, who alleged he found a pint of moonshine in her place, forfeited $105 appearance bond by failure to appear before Burgess Charles C. McNeal.

Helen Radkovich, Pittsburgh; Mele Melavich and Anna Minich, 64 Midland avenue, charged with being inmates of a disorderly house forfeited $15 bond each.

MISS KEENEY HOSTESS HERE

Miss Betty Ann Keene entertained members of the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church at her home in Ohio avenue last night. She was assisted by Miss Josephine Rogers.

Hanging just below the cockpit on the under side of the wing and traveling a mile-a-minute two thousand feet in the air, with his opponent kicking his leg off the edge every time he attempted to get over a cramp overtook the member and Wilson became exhausted from failure and felt himself slipping.

Fortunately for Al, his sparring partner realized his precarious predicament in time and assisted him onto the wing to safety before exhaustion forced him to release his hold on the plane and go hurtling to earth.

Elsie Tarron, pretty amber-eyed comedienne, plays the feminine lead opposite Al Wilson, while Frank Rice, Bud Osborne, Frank Tomick and others have prominent supporting roles.

Bruce Mitchell, who wrote "Sky High Saunders," also directed the picture.

Buyers of Essex cars in the first 9 months of this year would fill and overflow the largest stadium in the world. More than 194,000 Super-Sixes were bought in this period.

Preference for ESSEX almost 2 to 1

In outselling any other "Six" at or near the price, almost two to one, the signal thing is not merely the overwhelming preference for the Essex Super-Six, but the source from which it comes.

A great proportion of buyers are owners, former and present, of big and costly cars. They turn to Essex because they find:

- The smoothness and performance of their costlier cars.
- Comfort and riding ease not excelled in any car.
- The roominess and relaxation of their larger cars.
- Traffic nimbleness and handling ease unmatched in larger cars.
- Economy of operation and maintenance exclusive to Essex.

Engineered to long life, lasting reliability and lowest operation and maintenance costs, it represents the greatest value in all Essex achievement.

HINT FLARE OF FIREWORKS IN JURY QUIZ

Government Promises "Big New Lead" in Sinclair Case.

BURKINSHAW MUM

Ten Alleged "Contract Men" Already Cited in Complaint.

BY GEORGE E. DURNO.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A final flare of fireworks was promised today in the government's grand jury investigation of the alleged efforts of Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, to tamper with the jury that was sitting in his trial for conspiracy with former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to grab the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Neil Burk Inshaw, in charge of the investigation, was guarding the nature of the unexpected "big new lead" zealously. "If I let anything out in advance," he said, "I wouldn't get the information I'm going after."

He indicated, however, there might be further developments of a really sensational character. The Burns agents kept a constant surveillance over 11 of the 12 jurors. Reports the operator made, which were seized in a raid on their headquarters, reveal that the financial status of certain of the jurors was scanned closely, particularly with reference to mortgages and notes against them.

In another instance, a Burns agent made unsuccessful efforts to ingratiate himself with a friend of one of the jurors. Again, the characters of next-door neighbors of the jurors were probed. William J. Burns, his sons, W. Sherman and Raymond, and all of the operatives who took part in the jury espionage have been notified to be on hand again Monday.

Father Gracey Speaks

In France. He said the French people spent $2,000,000 to make the convention possible.

Sons of St. George Dinner.

He was introduced at the Sons of St. George dinner by Attorney Ben L. Bennett, who was toastmaster. Besides Father Gracey, Rev. R. K. Caulk, pastor of St. Stephen's church, and Harry Banks, of Youngstown, grand secretary of the lodge, made addresses. Vocal solos were rendered by Joseph Birbeck and Oliver Johnson, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Wilson, and Miss Thelma Morris, Charles Heracles, Howard Mackey and Miss Helen Hague, accompanied by Miss Carroll. Harry Mayer of Youngstown also rendered a solo and gave a reading.

Attorney W. S. Foulks was toastmaster at the Legion celebration. Robert Baur led the singing of army songs. Through the courtesy of the Ceramic theatre management, Nat Mann & Company, a revue appearing here, presented vaudeville numbers following Father Gracey's address.

Rev. Raymond Sidney Bradley, of Lincoln, Neb., and Dr. George W. Eise, of Indianapolis, Ind., members of Crusader team of men, who are directing a campaign for the erection of a National City Christian church in Washington, D. C., will deliver addresses at a fellow dinner to be served in the First Church of Christ, College and East Fourth streets, at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

Representatives of all Christian churches in Columbiana county will attend the dinner, for which no charge will be made. Church leaders, teachers, officers and workers in missionary societies and other organizations are invited.

The Crusaders will also occupy the pulpits of Christian churches in the county tomorrow morning and night.

OHIOAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Murder and Suicide Explanation of Cadiz Tragedy.

CADIZ, O., Nov. 12.—Murder and suicide was the explanation given by police today of the manner in which Doyle D. Donaldson, 32, and his wife, 26, met death Friday. Their bodies were discovered on a staircase in their home by a neighbor last night. Mrs. Donaldson had been shot twice through the body, while Donaldson was killed by a bullet which entered his right temple.

A note in the husband's pocket, addressed to his father, F. N. Donaldson, explained that his wife had been unfaithful.

Although the revolver contained only one empty shell, five empty cartridges were found on the floor near the bodies and police believed that Donaldson killed his wife and then reloaded the gun before shooting himself.

The victims are survived by two small children.

DENIES GUILT IN CAIN CRIME

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 12.—Samuel Wise, 39, who is alleged to have murdered his brother, Joseph, 24, Friday, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in court here today.

The accused man's attorney waived a lunacy plea, but Prosecutor Charles Taft said he would probably have alienists examine the prisoner in order to test his sanity.

The killing occurred in the office of L. Wise & Company, leather and hide dealers. The two brothers are said to have been enemies for years and the murder is reported to have climaxed a quarrel. According to Ben Ritter, secretary of the company, who was present at the time, Samuel clubbed his younger brother to the floor with a baseball bat and then shot him four times with a pistol.

CLEVELAND VOTE FRAUD CHARGED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12.—A suit charging 27 separate acts of fraud and illegality on the part of election officials to defeat the Davis charter amendment, was filed here today by Ezra Shapiro, acting on behalf of the Harry L. Davis committee, in an effort to set aside last Tuesday's municipal election in which the charter was defeated.

The Shapiro petition requests that the count be declared "null and void" and asks that a date be set for another election to be held under court orders.

Hearing on the injunction was to be held today before Judge C. V. Weygandt.

"Kid Mayor"

When Paul Ungrodt, 23, was elected mayor of Washburn, Wisconsin, in April, 1924, many older heads feared he would fail to avert an impending crash in the town's finances. That he did his job well was indicated when he was re-elected in 1926, and, today, the town is virtually out of debt.

3 MEN DIE AS TANKER BURNS

Fourth Member of Crew of Vessel is Dying.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—With three of her crew dead and a fourth dying, the tanker Beta, fire in her forward hold and sinking by the head, was slowly making her way to port early today and was reported under escort off Stapleton, S. I.

The Beta, with a crew of 35, sailed yesterday for Baytown, Texas. A message several hours later from Captain Keyhoe read: "Eight miles north of Barnegat coast guard standing by. Bow blown out. Explosion forward. Further messages revealed three men had been killed by the blast, the origin of which was not revealed in first messages. The injured member of the crew was removed by a coast guard cutter and transferred to the marine hospital."

MOSCOW EXPELS 76 COMMUNISTS

MOSCOW, Nov. 12.—Wreaking vengeance for the recent demonstrations against the Communist party, the Moscow control committee of the party today expelled 76 members of the opposition.

The expelled members were accused of participating in public and secret meetings at which Leon Trotsky and M. Zinoviev, at whom the wrath of the party has been directed, were said to have made addresses against the present controlling government.

Tariff Dispute Adjusted.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—Official announcement was made this afternoon that the negotiations between France and the United States for a temporary tariff agreement have ended satisfactorily.

DEATH ROLL

Jack Vinton Sebring. Jack Vinton, 6-months-old, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Sebring, died yesterday in the home, 3363, 100th street, Cleveland.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Burial will be made there.

MISS COWLES WINS SPEAKING CONTEST HERE

"Prince of Peace" Declaration Event Held.

AWARDED MEDAL

Victor Will Enter County Competition on December 4.

Miss Esther Cowles, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Cowles, 607 Sugar street, was winner in the "Prince of Peace" declamation contest held last night in the Methodist Protestant church auditorium.

Miss Cowles received a bronze medal and will enter the Columbiana county contest to be staged on or before Dec. 4, probably at Lisbon.

Special musical features during the program included piano selections rendered by Mrs. Harvey Price and violin solos by Miss Irene Pirth.

Last night's contest was staged by 11 East Liverpool churches as a part of the world peace education program of Ohio Council of Churches. Judges were Rev. L. J. Davidson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, and Miss Bertha Artz and Harlan Hall, faculty members of the high school.

TENNESSEE MOB LYNCHES NEGRO

COLUMBIA, Tenn., Nov. 12.—While two ministers stared in amazement, an armed mob of 250 masked men hanged Henry Choate, 18-year-old negro here last night for an alleged attack on 16-year-old school girl earlier in the day.

Three times the mob stormed the Maury county jail before it finally succeeded in getting the negro. Less than ten minutes after he had been taken from his cell, he was strung from the second floor of the court house, about 300 yards from the jail.

The negro confessed to the crime just before the rope was tied around his neck and he was pitched out of the second floor window.

OFFICER SHOT BY BANDITS

Policeman Probably Fatally Wounded at Bethlehem, Pa.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 12.—Policeman Charles Fenton, 26, was wounded probably fatally when he sought to capture bandits who today held up and robbed the inmates of an alleged disorderly house here.

Three men jumped into an auto after the robbery. Fenton surprised the men and held them at bay, awaiting arrival of additional police. Suddenly a fourth man came up behind the blue coat and shot him in the back and abdomen.

POLAR EXPLORER DIES IN NORWAY

OSLO, Nov. 12.—Captain Kristian Prest-Gaard, famous Norwegian Polar explorer, died here today. He was 47 years old.

Captain Prest-Gaard was associated with Roald Amundsen and Fridtjof Nansen on several of their Polar expeditions.

VAGRANTS START BLAZE IN PLANT

Little loss was reported in a blaze, believed to have been started by vagrants, in the abandoned frame plant building of the Ohio Silica company, Palissey street, East End, last midnight.

East End and Central fire departments responded to the alarm.

"Coxey's Army" Still Moving.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The "Coxey's army" of unemployed miners, marching to London to attract attention to unemployment conditions, left Chippenham today on a 20-mile trek to Swindon.

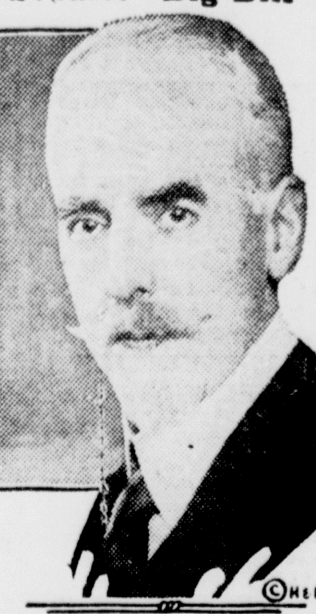

At Swindon they will be met by "Emperor" Cook himself, who will lead the "army" into London.

TURNER URGES RURAL COURT

Calls for Salaried System to Replace Justices.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—A salaried court system for rural communities to take the place of the justices of the peace, "but without any trace of the fee system remaining," was suggested today by Attorney General Edward C. Turner as a plank for the next Ohio Republican state platform as he addressed a session of the Ohio Republican Women's council here.

"I hope our weak-kneed legislature will properly interpret the handwriting on the wall, and throw off the yoke of lobbyists," Turner declared.

Turner urged that the next Ohio Republican platform, also, contain planks recommending: "Outlawing the paid legislative lobbyists; repeal of the Pence law, under which utilities charge increased rates under bond before approved by the state utilities commission; enactment of new election laws," and "opposing extravagant campaign contributions."

Turner voiced belief that Ohio's election laws should be amended so as to provide for permanent registration of Ohio voters and for an inexpensive method of recounting ballots when fraud is charged.

MARK WORLD FLIGHT DATE

Aerial Celebration in Santa Monica Tomorrow.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 12.—America's glorious record of achievements in man's winged conquest of the air will be written in the skies here tomorrow in an aerial celebration of the third anniversary of the United States army's world flight.

Clover field, starting point three years ago of the intrepid army fliers, who winged their way around the world to inspire the later feats of Lindbergh, Byrd, Chamberlin, Hegenberger and Maitland, will be the scene of a monster air meet to commemorate the historic flight.

Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold will be the only one of the aerial trail blazers here to attend the celebration.

Lieut. Leclair R. Schulze, one of the army air magicians, was killed last August when a parachute failed to open as he leaped 1,400 feet to earth from a burning plane at Selfridge, Mich.

The others who are to be honored for their epochal flights are Major Frederick L. Martin, Capt. Lowell H. Smith and Lieuts. Erick Wilson and Leigh Wiley.

The army fliers circled the earth in 371 hours actual time in the air, over a period of 175 days. The flight was in progress from April 6 to Sept. 28 in 1924.

ment oil lands, bribing Cabinet officers, etc., will disappear. The world as a whole is honest. LIKES honesty, and is steadily getting better. A little setback, just now, from bootlegging, but that will pass.

Socialists in the Reading, Pa., election made a clean sweep, electing the Mayor and controlling the City Council for the next four years; biggest Socialist victory since Socialists captured Milwaukee some years ago.

Socialists in Reading will be fortunate if they do as well as Milwaukee did under the Socialists, directed by Victor L. Berger, whose theory includes "absolute obedience to law," knows that where the majority can Berger, well educated and intelligent rule, having the vote, there is no excuse for any action, except at the polls.

The world accepts changes as they come. Not long ago crusaders in New York tried to prevent bicyclists riding by women, called immodest, luring ladies too far from the house. Now they go 1,000 miles in motors, or try to fly over the ocean.

Next, Aldermen decided that women must be forbidden to smoke in public restaurants. Now the big Pennsylvania Railroad put ladies' smoking cars on its first-class trains from New York to Washington.

Nevertheless, women should not smoke until they are through with child bearing. Each child should have a chance, and gets it, no matter what his father may do, when his mother doesn't smoke or drink strong liquor before he is born.

DOPE RAIDER IS SHOT DOWN

Detroit Clean-up May Cost Life of Inspector.

DETROIT, Nov. 12.—Joseph Bell, Narcotic inspector, jointly credited with his partner, Inspector Arnold Lachenauer, with having broken up one of the largest drug rings operating between Canada and the United States, today is believed dying from a bullet fired by an unidentified assailant.

Police believe the gunman was hired by a dope ring which fears the future activities of Bell and Lachenauer. The men were fired upon last night as they completed a raid in which they made three arrests. Lachenauer escaped uninjured.

CANNON FIRING WRECKS WINDOWS

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 12.—Windows in a number of downtown buildings, broken by the firing of a cannon during the Armistice day celebration here Friday, were being replaced today. The cannon, a French 75, was loaded with powder and wadding and fired from the court house esplanade and the concussion shook window panes from nearby stores and a hotel. Several spectators were struck by the falling glass but none was injured.

4 DIE, 27 OTHERS TRAPPED IN MINE

TOKIO, Nov. 12.—Four miners were killed, 25 injured and 27 entombed by a gas explosion in the Mitsui Bishi company's coal mine at Bibai, Hokkaido, early today.

Rescuers were making frantic attempts to dig out the survivors but little hope is held out for those buried in the mine.

PLAN PHILATELIC EXHIBITION IN FOREST CITY

East Liverpool Club Invited to Send Collections.

MEETING CALLED

Delegates Attend Conference Held in Youngstown.

President Paul McKenna, Director Brady Buchanan, H. J. Price and Merrill Buchanan, of the East Liverpool Philatelic society, attended a meeting of the Mahoning Valley Stamp club in the offices of the Ohio Savings and Loans company, 17 East Boardman street, Youngstown, last night, when plans for the Mid-Western Philatelic Exhibition, to be held at Cleveland May 21 to 28, 1928, were discussed.

Other cities represented were: Sharon, Warren and Niles. Special guests were F. W. Grant and W. W. MacLaren of the Garfield Perry Stamp club of Cleveland, which will act as host during the exhibition. The exhibition is to be held in the Cleveland hotel.

MacLaren, who is internationally known as the "World's Best Stamp Hunter," exhibited four volumes of his collections, one consisting of 50 best finds which are priceless. Other volumes were Civil war revenues, Civil war patriotics, and Specialized old U. S.

The East Liverpool society has been extended an invitation to be represented at the exhibition, and this will be discussed at a meeting Friday, November 18, at the Y. M. C. A.

ALLEGED ROBBER GETS 12-25 YEARS

BUENOS AIRES, O., Nov. 12.—Common please Judge J. Walter Wright today sentenced Wilbur Hand to imprisonment in Ohio penitentiary for from 12 to 25 years. Hand was recently convicted of participating in the $195,000 robbery of the Commercial Savings bank at Gallon June 28, last.

After Hand, in a dramatic manner in the courtroom, declared he was innocent, the court took under advisement the request of his counsel that execution of the sentence be deferred and that bond for hand be fixed, pending appeal to the Crawford county appellate court from the decree of conviction.

Before announcing sentence, Judge Wright overruled a motion for a new trial.

$200,000 FIRE AT SCHENECTADY

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Fire today wrecked the W. T. Grant company's 25-cent store in State street, doing damage estimated at $200,000. Two adjoining stores, the Wallace company the Metropolitan store, were damaged by smoke and water.

The company's store at Albany, which was destroyed by fire several months ago, was reopened today.

Newburgh Heights Mayor Acquitted.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12.—A jury which tried Mayor John G. Tegg, of Newburgh heights, whose reelection last Tuesday in the face of an indictment charging embezzlement was considered by his friends as a vindication, found Tegg not guilty late Friday.

Tegg had been charged with embezzlement of $1,111.20 in liquor court fees from Newburgh village and the state.

VANDERBILT SUES FOR DIVORCE

RENO, Nevada, Nov. 12.—Charging mental cruelty, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., of New York, today had a divorce suit on file here against his wife, Rachel Vanderbilt. They were married in New York on April 29, 1920.

Immediately after Vanderbilt filed his suit, his wife, through her attorneys, filed a counter suit in which she denied the charges of her husband and asked that she be granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

According to Vanderbilt's complaint, his wife was not in accord with him when he was publishing tabloid papers at Los Angeles, San Francisco and Miami, Fla. The complaint said further that his wife wished him to give up his work in order that he could live a life of social ease and luxury.

12-TIME MAYOR AGAIN ELECTED

ATHENS, O., Nov. 12.—Hugh Gormley, who began to run for mayor of Gloucester in 1895 and has never been defeated but once, will again serve the village as chief executive for the next two years.

An official recount of the votes today showed that Gormley had won by one ballot, though it was first announced that the present mayor, S. A. Park, had won by the same margin. Gormley, formerly a power in Democratic politics in southern Ohio, has already served 12 terms as mayor.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Enthusiastic buying of United States Steel stock and a few of the independent steels in the short session of the stock market today attested Wall street's confidence in the immediate future of the steel trade.

A pronounced increase in the buying demands of the automobile trade for steel strips, combined with yesterday's increase of a dollar a ton for steel products of various kinds, was generally accepted as heralding the fall revival of the steel trade, now somewhat overdue. Pittsburgh dispatches indicated a sizable increase in the operations of strip mills, which are now working at 50 to 65 per cent of capacity. Buying of railroad steel is expected to increase materially within the next few weeks.

Recording a two-point gain in the first half hour, United States Steel common was the outstanding leader of the early advance in industrial stock prices. Colorado Fuel and Iron rose up to 74, Bethlehem Steel gained nearly two points and other of the well-known independents sold up a point on the average. Corn Products and American Can, the star performers of the week, carried their rallies to new high prices for the year. Large blocks of General Motors changed hands above 132, the highest price of the week.

The week-end business and mercantile surveys were generally favorable, indicating a good expansion in retail trade; satisfactory progress in the crop districts and an upswing in prices of important commodities. Country-wide business is healthy and earnings records for the fourth quarter are expected to be more favorable than the second and third.

FOGO TO ASK SOLONS TO ACT TUESDAY NIGHT

Seventeenth and Commerce Streets Need Attention.

TWICE REJECTED Proposed Bond Issue Lost at Polls This Week.

Still favoring the enactment of legislation, he asserts, for the construction of an adequate drainage system in the Seventeenth and Commerce street district, Mayor W. L. Fogo expects to turn the attention of Wells-ville councilmen to the project again when the legislative body convenes on Tuesday night.

The Seventeenth street sewer construction has been an issue here for more than a year and twice was voted on at the polls. On both occasions it received majority figures but failed to draw the percentage necessary to make it legal.

The bond issue asking for $18,000, which it is thought will pay for the construction of the project, lacked approximately 40 votes last Tuesday.

While no announcement has been made to this effect, it is possible that the mayor will ask council to enact legislation if financially able to do so. It is pointed out that lack of proper drainage facilities in the district may ultimately cost the city as much, possibly more than the cost of the sewer.

Typical Notre Dame Eleven Favored To Defeat Army Today

Psychological Reaction After Gopher Game Expected to Prove Beneficial to Knute Rockne's Outfit.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—That perennial Notre Dame-Army act, so good that it never has a bow in these parts, will be back on New York time this afternoon, bringing with it a new trick which will be a very good one even if they aren't able to do it. They will try to place 150,000 people in 76,000 seats, the former representing the approximate demand for tickets in this stand-out classic of the eastern football season and the latter the exact supply.

As a result, certain fore-handed gentlemen with flat feet and choice tickets were blackjacking the late comers this morning for as much as $20 a seat for tickets that originally sold over the counter for $1.

It looked the part of a twenty-dollar game, at that, for the Irish, with victories over Navy, Indiana, Georgia Tech and others and a tie with Minnesota, were said to be a typical Notre Dame outfit and the Army, ninety-eight per cent veteran in character, had only an excusable defeat by Yale against its record. Even money, according to no less an authority than Rockne himself, was the only true price.

However, general sentiment favored a Notre Dame victory, it being figured that the tie game with Minnesota last Saturday had a great moral effect upon a team that might have been getting ideas about itself. For purposes of psychology, the Irish tie with the Gophers was worth ninety-nine cents on the dollar compared with West Point's last two games, in which it scored more than eighty points.

Psychology also rested with Rockne in the selection of his starting team, for, whereas the Army had only one first team and could do no less than start it, Rockne had several with the added alternative of nominating a combination eleven as he did against Minnesota. This consisted of a first string line and a second string backfield and, being that Notre Dame scored its touchdown with this combination in operation, the natural guess would be that Rockne will repeat this afternoon.

For one thing, his original "shock troops" were scored on by too many teams to suit Rockne. For another, that experienced and heavy cadet line looked entirely too strong to be trifled with by a lot of gent's who hope to be good next year.

The game will introduce one fine forward line to another and a good two great backfields into action—in brief, two unusually good teams. The Army

Yale battles Tiger Without Caldwell

Championship of East Will Hinge on Outcome.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 12.—Undismayed by the quick of fate that has robbed it at the eleventh hour of its most powerful attacking weapon, Bruce Caldwell, Yale will pit a rugged, grimly determined eleven against an alert aggressive Princeton team in what promises to be one of the best and most spectacular battles that these ancient rivals have waged in the more than half century of their rivalry.

Football history will be written in this game upon which hinges in all probability the championship of the east; and possibly even the national championship itself. Princeton goes into the game unbeaten and united with a record unequalled by any team of major importance with the sole exception of the University of Georgia.

Yale, on the other hand, has a record marred only by a defeat at the hands of Georgia, and including victories over such mighty teams as Army and Dartmouth with lesser triumphs over Brown, Maryland and Bowdoin. Princeton's string of victories over Amherst, L. high, Washington & Lee, Cornell, Williams and Mary and Ohio State is the most impressive record any Tiger eleven has compiled since the war save in 1922 when the famous "team of destiny" swept all before it.

The giant Yale bowl will be filled to overflowing at game time with a human mass of 80,000 or thereabouts with thousands more standing disconsolately unable to gain admission.

The teams will probably line up as follows:

Yale	Princeton
Scott	L. E.
Eddy	L. T.
Hall	L. G.
Charlesworth	C.
Webster	R. G.
Quarrier	R. T.
Fishwick	R. E.

MUSKIES DEFEAT OHIO NORTHERN

NEW CONCORD, O., Nov. 12.—Muskingum celebrated its homecoming here Friday by beating Coaches Bill Meredith's Ohio Northern football team, 38 to 21.

Larrick, G. Clark and Shane starred for the Muskies, while Nussbaum, Campbell and Franz showed up well for the Polar Bears. The first half ended with Muskingum leading 12 to 0, but in the second half the game developed into a free scoring contest, with plenty of thrills for the spectators.

Score by quarters:
Muskingum 12 0 14 12—38

Preceding his days at Syracuse, where he managed that International league club for two years, is a long career as a big league player and coach.

In 1909, he began his big league career in the outfield with the St. Louis Browns, coming from the old O. and P. league. Though farmed out in 1910, he came back as a regular outfielder in 1911 and demonstrated his fly-chasing abilities and rabbit-like speed in the bases until 1918 when he went to Washington.

In 1919, he moved to the Cardinals and remained there until the Hornsby regime. Shotton's playing slipped after a couple of years with the Cardinals, but Branch Rickey saw in him a great aid and made him his assistant manager. He is credited with developing such men as Thoenen, Holman and Reinhart.

When Hornsby became manager, Shotton took over the reins of the Syracuse club and this season put up a great battle with the pennant-winning Buffalo team.

Shotton's home is in Amherst, O., and, in succeeding Stuffy McInnis, makes the sixth manager the Phillies have had since 1914. Only Pat Moran and Art Fletcher were able to stay for a reasonable length of time, each serving four years.

Stagg-Zuppke Tilt Midwest Grid Feature

Possibility of Defeat by Illinois Arouses Fans' Interest.

By Gene Hoffman.
CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—There is little to get excited about in the Big Ten football race today. One game stands out; not because it is a battle between ancient state rivals, but because it contains a possibility that University of Illinois may be jarred out of its first-place tie with Minnesota.

This is the Illinois-Chicago affair at Champaign. It brings together two of the most famous coaches in the middle west, Zuppke of the Illini, and Stagg of Chicago.

Minnesota idles with Drake university today, and, win or lose, the result will have no bearing on the conference standing. The Gophers have a reputation to maintain and it is safe to say they will not toss off a chance for national honors.

Beside the Illinois-Chicago contest, there are only two other simon-pure conference games scheduled: Northwestern-Indiana at Evanston, and Wisconsin-Iowa at Madison. Both are homecoming games, and that is their chief bid for honorable mention.

Other Big Ten teams are dated up as follows:

Michigan entertains Navy at Ann Arbor in one of the real classics of the day; Ohio State will be host to Denison, of the Ohio conference, at Columbus, and Purdue will introduce its Grange-like twins, Welch and Wilcox, to Franklin university on the Boilermakers' field.

Reverting to the Illinois-Chicago feud, of course Illinois should win. But that's the point. The element of uncertainty, the sensing by some of an "upset" and the awed, respectful whisperings of Stagg's name at Illinois, are what make this the "stand out" game on today's card.

This is the fifteenth time that Stagg and Zuppke have faced each other at opposite ends of the 50-yard line to direct their squads in bone-cracking combat. Of the 14 previous games, Zuppke and Illinois have won eight, Stagg and Chicago four. Two were tied.

It is about these odds that prevail on today's conflict, 8 to 4. Illinois has not been beaten this year. But was tied once by Iowa State. Chicago has lost two conference games and one non-conference tilt. Stagg's Maroons admittedly are entering the fray in their worst condition of the season; Illinois, on the other hand, is practically intact with the exception of Doug Mills, a star kicker.

If the Maroons, under these conditions, succeed in defeating Illinois, they will have clarified the Big Ten standings and achieved one of the greatest upsets in the history of the gridiron.

Picked First

A team of southern football players is being chosen to meet a picked team of California players in Los Angeles Christmas day. The elevens will be chosen and coached by six of the leading coaches of south and California. The south already has selected Fred Pickhard, captain of the University of Alabama eleven, to captain the southern team.

East-West To Meet On Pitt Field

Mighty Battle Forecast by Gridiron Dopesters.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Something is due to fly here today when Nebraska and the University of Pittsburgh endeavor to knock each other for the proverbial goal. Middle westerners, mindful of Nebraska's impressive victories over such strong teams as Kansas, Iowa State, and Syracuse, think that the fur that flies will be mostly Panther fur. Employees of the local steel and plate glass mills are as confident that the sun that day will be obscured by the husks of the Cornhuskers. An occasional pessimist is found to predict that the only substance flying through the Herron Hill atmosphere will be either rain or snow.

These prophets of evil weather have not forgotten last week's game between Pitt and Washington and Jefferson which was played on a gridiron that for two days had been drenched with rain. So slippery was the playing field that even such outstanding backs as Gibby Welch and Bullet Booth of Pitt and Bill Amos of Wash Jeff found it almost impossible to get going. The result of that scoreless tie has been that instead of one team from this district still being in the race for the mythical championship of the east there are still two claimants.

Nebraska has an unusually strong team this year from all the inside information that Pitt's intelligence section has been accumulating this fall. Glen Presnell, Nebraska's leading ground gainer, has been described to the local ball club as the best back that has roamed the great open spaces of the Missouri Valley Conference since the war.

Jock Sutherland, Panther coach, is hoping that at least one of his quarterbacks, Edwards and Fisher, will be in shape to play against the westerners. In last week's game he had to put Parkinson, a sub fullback, in the quarterback's position after experimenting for a while in practice with Andy Salata, a tackle.

In Captain Gibby Welch, ground gainer extraordinary, and in Bullet Booth, pile driving fullback, Jock has two backs that he would not trade for any he has heard about this year. Both are candidates for the all-America team of any one who lumps them in action. With a dry field they are in the habit of scoring two or three times in a quarter against teams like West Virginia, Drake, and Carnegie Tech.

Ceramic theatre Monday in conjunction with the musical comedy show, "The World of Pleasure"

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—"More than 500 hours," said Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider, pointing with considerable satisfaction, to his flying map.

"And that," he added, "doesn't show my last few flights. They are not charted yet."

"It's more than some pilots have flown,"

For a non-professional, Colonel MacNider undoubtedly is the most regular aerial traveler out of Washington, and back again.

His plane's no bad with him. It's his ordinary means of getting around, keeping dates, attending to his usual day's work.

For instance, you want to see him, but you observe by the newspaper that he's in Chicago. So you call up his office and ask his secretary, "What day will Col. MacNider be back?" and, likely as not, back comes the answer, "We're expecting his plane in any minute now."

Just as the average prosperous business man has his own automobile chauffeur, the colonel has his personal airplane pilot, but equally as the business man is competent himself to take the wheel of his car, it need be even so is the colonel a qualified aviator, who can and frequently does do his flying solo.

The army air service, he it known, isn't enthusiastic over all this flitting around, by civilian officials, in the heavens above.

It's theoretically favorable to the encouragement of aeronautics, but it's duly mindful also of the unfavorable publicity which inevitably must ensue upon the smearing of an assistant secretary of war over a square quarter of a mile of the countryside.

"I never would have annexed a plane all to myself," admits MacNider, "if the aviation corps had its way."

"As is was, they kept me out of it for a long while," he continued, "but I watched my chance, and one day, when the secretary was away and I was acting, it came."

"The minute I had the authority I simply grabbed that plane and tore it right up by the roots."

"They fought like a fury to get it back, and they'd have taken it away from me, too, if I hadn't been acting secretary." It was surprising, the number of reasons why they had to tell whether or not they really were so.

"But by the time I was back, as plain assistant, I was dug in."

THE colonel's a rational flyer, at that, with no relish for risking his neck needlessly. Of the tail spin, for example, he speaks with some distaste.

"When they take you up for instructions, you see," he explained, "the first thing they do is to throw you into a tail spin, because that's the most dangerous thing that can happen to you, and they want to show you how to get out of it.

"That's all very well, but when once you get in—for purposes of demonstration or anything else—the chances are, say, about one in ten that you never will get out."

Evidently not wanting to appear critical, the colonel didn't say, out and out, they were a part of the curriculum he'd just as soon have had omitted from his course, but it was fairly obvious that it was a detail of his education upon which he looked back with less longing to experience it over again than some of the rest.

"A careful aviator," as he concluded, rather warmly, "shouldn't fall into tail spins at all."

STAY GRANTED IN NADEL CASE

McDermott's Friend in Mellett Death Appeals.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 12—Ben Nadel, convicted bootlegger, who befriended Patrick McDermott, "Trigger man" in the Don Mellett murder at Canton last year, has been granted a stay of execution until Nov. 28, pending appeal to the state supreme court.

Common Pleas Judge George Baer granted the stay late Thursday and a capias for Nadel's arrest was withdrawn.

Nadel was sentenced to five years in the Ohio penitentiary, following his conviction of harboring McDermott, but was at liberty under $35,000 bond pending an appeal.

Your Weight and Your Health

A simple, sensible booklet from our Washington Bureau shows the relation of foods to weight, and how to control your weight without using medicines, trick diets, or apparatus.

Here are 32 pages of fact and common sense, telling in a plain way about vitamins, calories, proteins, carbohydrates, and all the other food essential terms and reducing—the scientific facts in everyday language. Includes menus for weight increase or decrease, and shows how to make daily menus to keep your weight under control, without starving or stuffing.

A help to every housewife who plans the meals, and of especial value to every one who is overweight or underweight. Six cents postage and handling charge will bring you the booklet.

Frederick J. Haskin, Director, The East-Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

I enclose herewith SIX CENTS in stamps or in coin for a copy of the booklet WEIGHT CONTROL.

Sally's Shoulders

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," etc.

"Please don't keep on talking to me like this, Mr. Davidson," said Sally, with a quiver in her voice. "It embarrasses me. Truly it does. I want you to tell me something. How did Millie happen to quit working for you—that is, in your office? Why did she leave it?"

"She thought she knew. As a matter of fact, all she knew was what Millie had told her—the same old story about David's getting 'entirely too gay' with her, as many another man had—according to Millie."

And so she was speechless when Davidson answered her as he did answer her.

"Oh, she got up on her high horse because I wanted her to fix up a party with you and that Sloan guy of yours," he said, in a rather shamefaced way. "She knew how I felt about you—guessed it, I suppose. And she said she hadn't reached the point where she was framing up love affairs for her sister."

"Is that the truth?" Sally asked, after fully three minutes. "Are you sure that's why she left your office?" "Sure, I'm sure." His tone was impatient. "And, moreover, what I'm telling you is the truth. I didn't come out here tonight to lie to you. I've gone hay-wire about you, and I've come to tell you so."

He got quickly to his feet, took a swift look around the empty dining room, and then came around the table and caught her tightly in his arms.

Without a sound Sally bent herself backward, and turned her face away from him to escape the kiss that he finally managed to plant on the soft nape of her neck. Turned thus, she could see into the hall. A man stood there, with his hat in his hand, and his dark eyes on her and Davidson. He came slowly into the room. It was John Nye. The very last person on earth that Sally wanted to have seen her at that moment, of course!

"Things always turn out like this!" she said to herself, savagely, as she tore herself away from Davidson.
